Year Book of the Senior Class of Greensboro College.. Greensboro, N. C.

THROUGH THE YEARS + + +

"And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him." Luke 2:40

FROM a scrap of charter paper the child Greensboro College grew grew for a century from that scrap of paper to the beloved educational institution which today we are proud to claim as our Alma Mater. The growth has not been easy. Early nineteenth century southerners were not convinced of the need for female education. Money was scarce. But loval friends fought valiantly and tirelessly and success crowned their efforts. Greensboro College became more than a charter. She became an actual institution whose halls resounded with the activity of girls.

Two decades saw her growth unhampered. Students and faculty increased. The building was improved. But not for long did she prosper, for soon the lapping flames of fire destroyed the entire main building, and the devastating war between the states prevented any attempts at rebuilding. Again, however, friends came to the rescue and managed to reconstruct the college which once more began an upward climb. She continued to grow, gaining friends, students, recognition, and esteem. At the turn of the century financial conditions and another fire threatened to destroy her existence, but alumnae and friends prevented the disaster. Since that time, unimpeded the old institution has steadily grown.

Throughout her hundred years Greensboro College has been sheathed in a spirit that has steadily waxed stronger. That spirit which goaded her founders has been transmitted by her children from those pioneers to us today who are celebrating her centennial. Without that spirit she could never have survived the many misfortunes that have come to her. Christian atmosphere, refinement, loyalty, intimacy, wholesome fun, fellowship, and true friendship belong to her—and to her alone, for there is a certain indescribable something found on the old college hill that cannot be discovered anywhere else. Girls have entered her doors for nearly a century, and girls have come out filled with those traditions which have clung to them long after their college days are over. "Her heritage is dear", and her spirit strong.

One hundred years ago some few men had the wisdom to realize that education for women was. and is, just as important as education for men. And those men had the courage to fight for their belief. Greensboro College has ever been filled with the wisdom which prompted her founders. Her presidents have administered wisely and well. With a true knowledge of what is right and just, the faculty have given instruction, and her students have received it diligently. Difficult problems which have arisen have been sanely solved. The century of her existence has indeed filled Greensboro College with wisdom.

Founded by the North Carolina Methodist Conference, Greensboro College has ever maintained her status of a Christian college. Recognizing her supreme obligation to the church, she places emphasis upon the Word of God, worship, and her own program of religious training and service. Courses in Religious Education, organizations for spiritual growth, close affiliation with the church, and special worship services fill the religious needs of her students, and it is this Christian atmosphere that has sent from her doors scores of consecrated women.

So today we proudly celebrate the centennial of her founding and honor those who have brought her to this significant landmark of her history. But this year is not an end—only a signal for the hundreds of girls who will come to these halls to do their share in building an even better Greensboro College as their tribute to those daughters of the first hundred years. May the girls to come hold ever dear the creed which has been our guide through the years:

"WE BELIEVE in being rather than in seeming; in the devotion to high ideals; in daring to do our duty as we understand it.

"We believe in having an attentive eye, a listening ear, a busy brain; in keeping the mind clear and bright, filling it with wholesome thoughts of life; in losing ourselves in useful industry.

"We believe in being worthy at all times: in having grim energy and resolute courage for the conquest of fear; in gaining confidence in our ability.

"We believe in service; in doing kind deeds: in thinking kind thoughts: in being strong, gentle, pure and good, steady, loyal, and enduring.

"We believe in reverence for the truth, in humility, in great aspirations and high ambitions, in toiling ever upward.

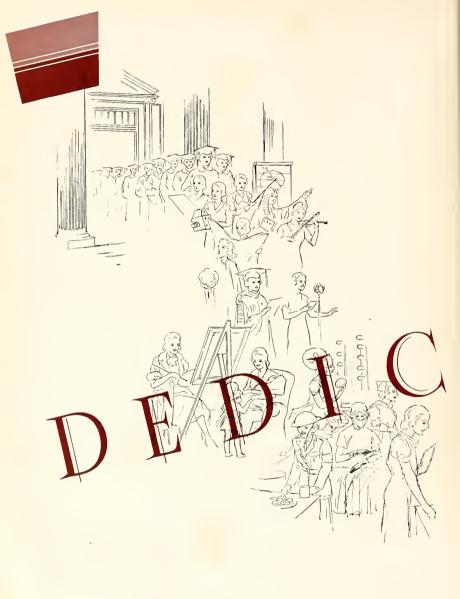

"We believe in cultivating the bright virtue of patriotism and the holy passion for friendship.

"We believe in studying hard, thinking quietly, speaking gently, acting frankly; in listening with open hearts to the winds, the trees, the stars, and the birds, to babes and sages.

"We believe in being glad, in loving all, in hating none, in doing all bravely, bearing all cheerfully, awaiting all occasions, burrying never.

"We believe in striving to gain sound knowledge, not content to simply know, but determined to use knowledge for the highest purpose.

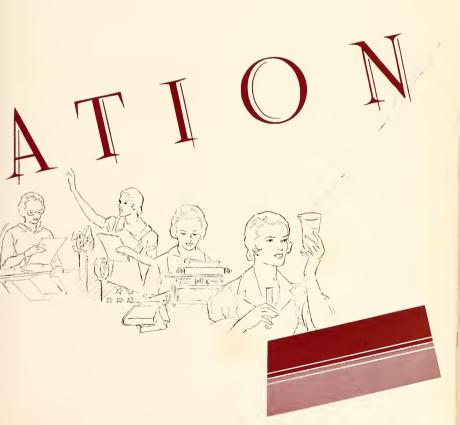

"We believe in man and woman, in God's unending love, and in the future."

TO THE GREENSBORO COLLEGE GIRLS OF YESTERDAY, TODAY, AND TOMORROW

who were, are, and ever will be sincerely grateful, loyal, and loving daughters of their Alma Mater

WE DEDICATE THIS, OUR CENTENNIAL ECHO

GREENSBORO COLLEGE has been singularly blessed with a high type of leadership, men who have matched the needs of the hour throughout the demands of many decades.

To guide Greensborough Female College through the precarious years of her infancy the board of trustees chose as first president Reverend Solomon Lea. minister of Leasburg. North Carolina. "a gentleman of liberal culture and pleasing manners." School life had been closely interwoven with his nature through his years of teaching experience. To him went the honor of organizing the classes in the first regularly chartered female college in North Carolina, and he fulfilled his duty well from 1846 until his restignation in 1847.

Dr. Lea was succeeded by Reverend Albert M. Shipp. D.D., "a man of correct literary taste and broad scholarshp," who possessed qualities of mind and heart that rendered him peculiarly well adapted to the position. When in 1850 he resigned to accept a professorship at the University of North Carolina, Reverend Charles F. Deems, D.D., afterwards widely known as the pastor of the Church of Strangers in New York City, was called to fill the position. Though only thicty years of age, Dr. Deems led the college through four years of great prosperity. "His superior natural endowments, his varied attainments in learning, his agreeable and attractive manners, and his liberal views of education, qualified him, in an eminent degree, for the presidency of a female college."

The fourth president of the college was the beloved Dr. Turner M. Jones. who from 1854 to his death in 1890 dedicated his devotion to the great cause of the education of women. Scores of women went out from Greensborough Female College during his administration, but few have forgotten Dr. Jones' noble ideals and the inspiration of which he was a constant source, and fewer still have failed to love him. War and fire threatened but Dr. Jones ever clumg to the ideal that "his college must be the best, offer the best, and receive the best possible at all times under all circumstances."

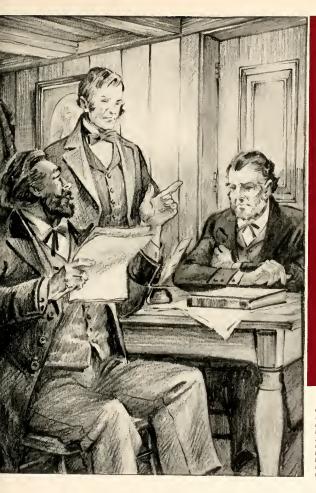

From 1890 to 1893 the helm of Greensborough Female College was ably held by Dr. Benjamin F. Dixon, whose administration was one of sound progress and steady growth.

Succeeding Dr. Dixon was Dr. Frank L. Reid, able minister, educator, and editor, whose period of service at the college was cut short by his death in the fall of 1894.

Dr. Dred Peacock came to the leadership of the college in 1894 and remained until his resignation in 1902 one of the outstanding presidents. His contribution to the college was distinctive and his place is secure in the affections of those who love Greensboro College.

Upon Dr. Peacock's resignation the first woman to become president of a college in the South. Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson, began an administration marked by cultural influence, loyalty, love, and outstanding success in spite of almost superhuman problems.

Reverend Samuel Bryant Turrentine, D.D., now beloved president emeritus and professor of Bible, came to the college in 1913. A true gentleman of the old school, Dr. Turrentine will ever be remembered and loved for his untiring patience, understanding sumpathy, scholarly dianity, and humble reverence for God.

A PETITION asking the Virginia Conference of the Methodist Church which met at Petersburg, Va., January 31 to February 8, 1837, to establish a female college was referred to Moses Brock, Peter Doub, and Samuel S. Bryant. This committee asked that the Legislature of North Carolina be petitioned for a charter for Greenshorough Female College. This charter was ratified December 28, 1838.

With the resignation of Dr. Turrentine in 1935 Dr. Luther L. Gobbel. Christian educator, came to the college with an array of new ideas, a number of which have already been fulfilled in the extensive improvement program launched under his direction. The prospect is bright for Greensboro College as Dr. Gobbel carries on the forward movement with his slogan that has in a short time become familiar. "Nothing less than the best is good enough for Greensboro College girls."

Greensboro College is proud of her presidents. Their problems and trials have been mang, but holding firmly to the wheel they have guided Greensboro College safely to her one hundredth birthday,

FROM OUR PRESIDENT

In the name of the College I greet her students—past, present, and future

Those of the past, who through their pioneering spirit, their devotion to truth, their loyalty in service, and their faith in the future, wrought nobly and who beckon us to carry on the glorious tradition. I salute, and I call upon to help build here, on the foundations so firmly laid, an institution worthy of the past and adequate for the increasing demands of the new century.

Those of the present I hall as worthy of their antecedents, favored by the rare privilegs of witnessing the transition from the old century to the new, and permitted to participate in this high day of glorious history. I challenge them to follow the gleam. There are yet new heights to gain, even new words to conquer.

This centennial year focuses attention not only upon the past and present but also upon the future. And as the glory of the past has come from the great personalities who have constituted the faculty and student hody. a cordial welcome is extended to those who have a spiritual kinship with those who have gone before and a desire to know the truth that the truth may make them free and useful."

-LUTHER L. GOBBEL

SAMUEL B. TURRENTINE D.D. President Emeritus

MISS MARGARET SCARBOROUGH
Assistant to the Dean

OUR DEAN

Most of us remember back in September of 35 when 'mid all the bustling excitement of the first day of school some of the early arrivals snatched us from the registration line and led us to the office door to get a peep at the 'new dean.' We peeped. 'What' That little bright-eyed girl a dean' Must be some mistake.''

But it wasn't a mistake That little bright-eyed girl was Miss Anne Garrard. A.B.. A M., Duke University, Alpha Delta Pi sorority, former teacher, and new Greensboro College dean. She had come to fill one of the hardest places the college had to offer. Directing the everyday life of 275 girls and winning their friendship at the same time is not an easy task, but she accomplished this task quickly and well.

Equally at home presiding at chapel, heading a receiving line, marching in academic regalia, or even riding in a "T-Model Ford." Miss Gartard is an all-round person, admirably suited for the deanship of Greensboro College.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC

MARK HOFFMAN

Director of Music, Professor of Piano

"Greensboro College has always had a good school of music." has been said by a faculty member of another school. In 1916 it was organized to give a Bachelor of Music degree, which is recognized by the State of North Carolina. Members of its faculty are nationally prominent in their profession. The School of Music combines conservatory advantages with a small college atmosphere.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

DR. ELIZABETH B. YOUNG
Professor of Education

The Department of Education, of comparatively recent origin, develops steadily. It provides the organization for students preparing for graduate study in child development and education and for those who may wish to care for their own children or to teach.

DEPARTMENT OF BIBLE AND RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

DR. RAYMOND A. SMITH
Professor of Religious Education

DR. SAMUEL B. TURRENTINE Professor of Bible

The study of Bible has always been required at Greensboro College. From the college catalogue of 1846 information is obtained of a course called "Moral Science" which was offered to juniors. Today students are able to select from eight courses in Religious Education and four in Bible Study, and the number of Religious Education majors is increasing rapidly.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY AND ECONOMICS

MR. ELLIOTT O. WATSON
Professor of History and Economics

From the time when Greensborough Female College opened her doors in 1846, history has been included in the curriculum. Until 1896 it was combined with English but in that year a separate department was established. Now the department offers courses in Ancient. European, English, American, and North Carolina history. American Government. Economics. History Methods, and Current Problems.

ART DEPARTMENT

Miss Marian Landrum Miss Nellie Alexander
Head of the Art Assistant in the Art Department Department

In the large studio on third floor Main building students interested in art sketch and paint to their hearts' content, receiving instruction in all the fundamental phases of art and having plenty of freedom for their originality. The art major is graduated with training meeting state requirements for teaching art in the elementary grades.

ECHO-

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS

MISS ANNIE M. PEGRAM Professor of Mathematics

Mathematics has always held a topmost place among the popular courses of study at Greensboro College. We find that in 1893 it was required for both the Bachelor of Literature degree and the Bachelor of Science degree. Now those working for a Bachelor of Arts degree can choose between mathematics and science. Besides the elementary work several advanced courses are offered for majors and teachers.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE

DR. PAUL M. GINNINGS Head of Science Department, Assistant Professor of Professor of Chemistry and Physics

DR. COLEEN FOWLER Biologu

Up until the first decade of the twentieth century the Science Department had been weak, due probably to the lack of equipment. At present it includes both the Department of Biology and the Department of Chemistry and Physics, giving majors in each as well as supplying the A.B. science requirement.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

MISS AGNES JETER Director of Physical Education

In the early days pupils were "daily exercised in calisthenics and aesthetic gymnastics." Today the department, though not offering a degree in physical education, is a vital factor in the maintenance of health on the campus as well as a means for fun and fair play through good clean sports. Every boarding student takes physical education for three years.

DEPARTMENT OF HOME ECONOMICS

MISS BERNICE JEANNETTE MISS MARGARET D. Professor of Home Economics

STEWART Professor of Home Economics

Girls interested in becoming teachers in home economics or in learning the household arts find excellent opportunities in the courses in clothing, textiles, foods and nutrition, home management, costume design, interior decoration, the tamily, child care. home nursing and teaching methods.

DEPARTMENT OF DRAMATICS

MISS ELBA HENNINGER
Professor of Speech and Dramatic Art

MISS FRANCES CALISTA WILLARD Instructor in Speech and Dramatic Art

The Department of Speech and Dramatic Art came into prominence in 1925 when the college agreed to credit the courses of study offered on an A.B. degree. Today it is "framed for the development of each student, whether it be to correct defects of speech, or to provide a confidence in public, or an outlet for dramatic ability."

ENGLISH

Reaching a large number of students the Department of English provides the English requirement for every college student and gives ample opportunity for further study. It teaches the fundamentals of writing, and literary interpretation and appreciation.

LIBRARY

MRS. REUBEN R. ALLEY MISS ANNETTE H. SHINN

Librarian Assistant Librarian

Greensboro College has always realized the necessity of a well chosen collection of books. With each year the number of books has increased and with each successive year the need for books has been greater, until today as the centennial is celebrated, the library is too small for the more than 18,000 volumes which it contains.

DR. ROBERT T DUNSTAN

Head of the Department

of Romance Languages

DR MADELINE STINSON
Assistant Professor of Romance Languages

A requirement of two years' foreign language is set for both the A.B. and B.M. degrees: hence, the Department of Languages plays a vital part in the college curriculum. Students may choose either French. Spanish, or German, and may obtain majors and minors in each.

DR. CONRAD LAHSER Professor of German

INFIRMARY

MISS PEARL WHITE TURNER
Registered Nurse

For minor aches and pains of students Greensboro College maintains a house on Odell Place—just far enough from the campus to allow students to get quiet rest. On duty constantly is a registered nurse, and the college physician is ready to come on call at any time. Even those who are not ill retire often to the infirmary for the restful sleep, special foods, and attention offered there.

OTHER OFFICERS

REV. W. M. CURTIS

Business Manager and Treasurer

Accounts must be handled: letters must be typed: grades must be recorded; books must be sold: and countless other tasks must be performed to keep Greensboro College running smoothly. For these the college has the efficient service of Mr. Curtis as business manager; Mr. Lowry H. Allison, as centennial secretary; Miss Theodocia Blackmon, as accountant: Miss Estelle DeHay, as secretary to the business manager; Miss Letha Brock, as registrar: Miss Mary Brock, as alumnae secretary and secretary to the president: Miss Emma Gower, as assistant in the administrative offices; Miss Margaret Scarborough, as supervisor of buildings; and Miss Carey Atkins, as manager of the book store.

Book Two CLASSES

A TIMID little southern lass picked up her skirts and followed her parents up the walk and slowly through the door of Greensborough Female College which that day. April 15, 1846, had opened to receive students. Just what was to happen, she did not know, for in those days it was no everyday occurrence for a girl to enter college. True, she had spent tiresome hours poring over an atlas, practicing penmanship, and learning to spell, read and figure accurately in order to meet the entrance requirements of the college; but whether she should be placed in the "first class," "junior class," or "senior class," she did not know. What if she should have to go into the Primary and Preparatory Department!

But being a particularly good student for a girl of her age, she was placed in the unior class. Hardly had her mother and father boarded the train, when the teachers to whose control she had been "submitted entirely," began giving her instruction in Rhetoric. Botany, Philosophy, Logic, Latin, and Algebra. When she had arranged her studies so that outside work would not interfere, she was allowed to take up the "ornamental" branches, needlework and music. It was with no little anxiety that she waited to see whether she would receive "very good," "good," "respectable," or "tolerable" on her report, but she worked diligently and soon "her natural ability, her previous preparation, and her application to study" warranted her graduation.

In 1879 a sturdy young lady in homespun hoopskirts climbed the same hill up which her mother had so timidly walked thirty-three years before. The trying experience of Reconstruction had made her unafraid as she entered the Sophomore Class, which had acquired its second year rating and name in 1854. Like all other southern women she had come to realize that with the changing conditions it was necessary for girls as well as men to know how to earn a living. It is no wonder, then, that she was anxious to take up book-keeping, stenography and typewriting which college authorities had added to the regular college course. But, of course, she must get one of the three diplomas: "The Full Diploma for young ladies who stand an approved examination upon the regular English course and one Ancient or Modern Language: The English Diploma for those who complete the regular English course, which embraces all the studies of the curriculum, except those called extra or optional: Certificate of Proficiency for those young ladies, who desire to take an eelectic course, on the completion of any special department."

The streamlined 1938 automobile pulled up to the curb, and a young girl hopped out. She stopped a moment to look around at Odell building, the tennis courts, and the rotunda. Then eagerly she ran up the walk which her grandmother had climbed in 79.

DURING Tuesday and Wednesday the classes were subjected to an importial and searching examination. The result was satisfactory to the friends of the institution and creditable to the pupils and instructors. These exercises were enlivened by occasional music, word, and instrumental.

"Annals of the Southern Methodism" 1857

Turning through the pages of the register, she wrote her name under the column "Freshmen." which name had come into use at Greensboro College sometime in the 1890's. With her satisfactory high school record balanced against the entrance requirements, and with her mind fully made up, she chose her studies from the wide selection of courses leading to the A.B. and B.M. degrees, and began at once on her career at Greensboro College—a four-year standard college for women whose standard of scholarship, ever abreast of the times, has made a name for her among Southern schools.

BEULAH BRADLEY

To THE BI-CENTENNIAL CLASS OF 2038:

"For you who are a hundred years wiser and stronger than we, the world is waiting. You, like us, will reach to the future which is strange; yet, will hold to the solid, well-grounded ideals of the past counting on the experiences of your fathers to give you wisdom for the tasks ahead. With heads held high and eyes raised to God, you will follow the lead of former generations toward joy, toward service, toward friendliness, toward world harmony.

Although a century separates us, we are bound together in the ever-lasting bond of the Greensboro College spirit and personality. This institution, which has singularly honored us by being our Alma Mater, has taught us well. With a hundred years' experience, and as you read this, two hundred years' experience, she has taught us the relation of truth to truth. Here, we have learned what little things are little: and what, as necessary parts of the great, have taken on a kind of greatness. Here we have found 'enough learning to make us humble,' enough friendship to warm and enlarge our hearts, enough culture 'to teach us the refinement of simplicity,' and a democracy that excludes neither rich nor poor. It is on this college hill that you, and we, have been strengthened out of our weaknesses. Our Alma Mater knows us well, and yet loves us. This love is our heritage, and it is yours!

It has been adequately stated that the first hundred years are the hardest, but after the pioneering comes the perseverance and fortitude to keep moving and progressing, so you too, have had a task. We have had the faithful help of the alumnae and faculty. May Fortune have been as generous with you. If your way has been made easier and your existence safer, the work done during the first hundred years has not been in vain.

Many deep, intangible joys that come only from true friendship are our most cherished graduation gifts: may fervent reiteration of precious hours spent together be

PRAYER TO TIME

Old man, weave us a life. Through A warp of laughter, thread the woof of tears. Spin of beauty, bright and flaming For the April of our years.

From the shuttle ever flying. Come the strands of blue and gold. Spun of green and brown and scarlet. May life's tapestry unfold.

In the pattern of the sunset Weave cool grey and threads of white. Braid the memories of the noon day. Into silver for the night.

Time, master craftsman, weave us a life, With a warp of laughter, thread a woof of tears. Weave of beauty, golden, flaming. In the April of our years.

HELEN AVETT, Class Poet.

For Four Years + + +

For four years the class of 1938 has been completing the story of a century. We have been filling this one twenty-fifth of a century by carrying on the traditions already important at Greensboro Coll.ge and by adding new practices which we hope will prove to be traditions here in the next century.

On September 5, 1934, eighty new girls lauded as the centennial class came to this campus. The faculty gave us a gracious reception, and the Young Women's Christian Association received us cordually on the following night. The next day, time became one grand rush with both the Irving and Emerson societies entertaining us afternoon and evening with tea dances, buffet suppers, and lawn parties. There has been no Decision Day since like the one in '34 when Evelyn Lyles of Thomasville was crowned as "Miss Emerson" and Starr Martin of Winston-Salem was chosen as the Irving brid.

One of the first news articles concerning the centennial class carried these headlines: "Freshmen Show a Variety of Talent." The explanation is to be found in the programs consisting or readings, dances, skits, piano and violin solos given by the freshmen of both societies at their first regular meetings.

Soon after we displayed our variety of talents in plays and other programs, the sophomores suddenly brought us back to earth. One October morning at four thirty, creatures different from any ever seen before emerged from rooms in Main building and meekly kneeled to the mighty sophomores. All that day tired bodies branded with red marks, dangling pig tales, short dresses, and white cotton stockings falling around tennis shors, knelt and ran errands for girls who would not even be members of the student body during the contennal celebration.

Realizing that we needed protection, we immediately decided to organize. With Jean Lassiter of Spring Hope (now studying voice at Juilliard School of Music) as our president we became better known as the class of '38. Under her direction we presented our famous class song to the college at the annual Greensboro College Day banquet. At once we set to prove our abilities at formal gatherings and welcomed our friends of the city at a tea.

At Christmas time our dan. Miss Olivia Harmon, advised us in introducing a new custom which we hoped would continue in other years. This custom was that of singing Christmas carols to friends of the college who lived in Greensboro. It delighted us to sing "in the sleet in Boston fashion."

At the close of the first semester, it was announced that nine of the forty-two students who averaged ninety or better on their studies were freshmen

To begin the new semester members of our class entertained the Big Sister class, the juniors, at a theater party.

Among the superlatives chosen by the student body that year a freshman was named best athlete. It was no wonder that a member of our class was chosen for this honor when the class held the school championship in soccer. basketball, and tennis.

At the May Day festival Mary Belle Draper (now Mrs. Abbot Lane Browne of Panama City. Florida) and Cornelia Satterfield of Roxboro representing the beauty of the class graciously attended the queen. Elizabeth Ray (Mrs. Joe Jelks of Mars Hill) and other "little ones" from our class danced about as pickaninnies. The May Pole dance was colorfully presented by the gay freshmen. So our year of observing and growing accustomed was completed.

In September 1935 we came again, not so many in number. Frances Griffin of Thomasville as president started us and led us through one of our most eventful years. Naturally the first thing to do was to have our supreme day, feshman-sophomore day. October 11, we were the sophomores and the freshmen were the loosely dressed hicks.

Then one morning at breakfast some girls entered the dining room wearing uniform blue coats with little white numbers on the peckets. The figures were '38 and the girls were members of that class The coats suggested another idea. and so at the first game of the soccer tournament Margarette Godwin of New Bern, with pomp and array, led her blue and white band of '38 across the field The parades continued during the basketball and tennis tournaments with the result that the class again won the school championship.

The spring of 36 brought us excitement and adventure. We entertained our Big Sisters at a banquet on the roof of the Jefferson building. Just as we finished the exciting program of faculty imitations, a tornado swept through the city. The next morning blue coats with 38 on the pockets could be seen scampering through the stricken area. But storms did not stop our love for banquets. Soon we joined the freshmen in inaugurating a freshman-sophomore banquet, beld at the Ring Cotton Hotel.

We chose Estelle Haves of Greenshoro and Frances Ray (Mrs. A. Shell Lloyd of Evansville, Indiana) as attendants to the queen of May. Other members of the class dressed in Greeian gowns of chines: white silk danced for the queen to "Liebestraum.

The grand "final" of the year came when we as Little Sisters arose in the early morning hours, picked dasses, and completed the traditional daisy chain in a record time. After presenting the chain to our Big Sisters at the class day exercise we returned to our homes to wait for the new September.

We returned in the fall to begin actual centennial work as the class of '38. With Starr Martin as president, we immediately elected Juni Parker Wrenn of Siler City as centennial chairman. When June had to give up the office because of illness, we chose Margaret Ford of Shelby to take her place. Committees were appointed to develop a centennial project on the life of Dr. T. M. Jones and the customs of the college during his presidency from 1854 to 1890.

The Junior Tea Garden under our control became the Junior Joint with a permanent location.

Sister at a bingo party, and they in turn entertained us with a theater party and dinner.

The early spring proved to be the preparation period for the junior-senior banquet which took place at the O'Henry Hotel in May With the color and majesty of a coronation in May, we entertained the seniors.

It was in 1937 that members of our class were elected to serve so major officers for 1937-1938. Margaret Chapman of New Bern took office as president of the Students' Association, Margaret Faw of North Wilkesboro as president of the Athletic Association. Anne Jones of Asheville as president of the Y. W. C. A., Margaret Ford as editor of The Collegian, Frances Griffin as editor and Winifred Gray of Lumberton as business manager of THE ECHO. Elizabeth Lawson of Spencer was chosen to act as chief marshal. Offia Lou Hyrris of Littleton as president of the Dramatic Club. Evelyn Lyles as president of the Emerson Society, and Starr Martin as president of the Irving Society

To attend the queen of May were Starr Martin and Evelyn Lyles. Hazel Snipes of Selma followed as maid-of-honor

As seniors we returned in 1937. Fach member of the class felt a great loss in the death of Marguerite Ballard of Hiddenite who had been chosen to serve as president of her Home Economics Club. Beulah Bradley of Zebulon, elected class president, ably led us into our last year.

In November, six students, members of the senior class were elected to represent the school on the roll of the nation's student ladder in the edition of "Who's Who Among the Students in American Universities and Colleges." The girls who were chosen were the presidents of the three associations, editors of the college paper and annual, and the town students' representative. Estelle Hayes.

To continue the centennial project the committee on the life and custom presented a skit to the student body portraying college life in the 1850's.

The main event after our dinner party for the Little Sisters was the Cap and Gown service which was held in the chapel on February 16. The order of the service was rearranged from the traditional manner by our class president. It pleased and delighted the seniors, Little Sisters, and the audience with its briefress and impressiveness.

Margaret Ford reigned at the '38 May festival and the senior members of her court were Starr Martin and Evelyn Lyles

As another distinction our class has the record of having eight students with degrees in music and one former student in the Juilliard school.

So the class of '38, the centennial class, completes one century and makes way for the new one!

After Ten Years + + +

"Greensboro College Celebrates Its Centennial." It was the night after our graduation and I gazed for possibly the last time at this familiar headline in the daily newspaper. Tall black letters formed these words in my mind once more as I snapped out the light and turned over.

"Well, we've certainly heard a great deal about the hundred years just passed," I said between yawns to no one in particular. "Wonder what the next hundred years will bring forth—or even the next ten years—"

Hardly had the last word left my mouth when I found myself in front of a familiar looking structure—Odell Memorial Auditorium in fact—and 1 turned to look for a familiar face in the crowd. Two business like young women with pads and pencils in their hands rushed up to me—Frances Griffin and Helen Avett' Upon talking to them I found that they had been sent over by their newspaper. The Winston-Salem Journal-Sentinel to cover the 1948 commencement of the Alma Mater. From them I learned that other members of our centennial class were back for commencement.

"As a matter of fact." Griffin said to me, "Starr Martin came over with us this morning. You know she has a dramatics studio where at present she is busy with production of "Pied Piper of Hamlin." She was quite anxious to come over today because Mayo is to be here. Mayo's been down at Carolina Beach getting the "Honeymoon Hotel" ready for the summer. I've heard it's quite a popular rendezvous for the class of '38."

The three of us set out for the Main Building, but we had a little difficulty in getting up the walk for the Academic Procession had begun to form. I heard Helen gasp and turned to see her staring at someone in a black robe with pink hood. It was Martha Moores, Professor of Organ and Voice at Greensboro College!

After we had spoken to our own "Ma Hopkins." she told us to look toward the back of the line and see the distinguished alumnae. I could hardly believe my eyes. The former Offa Lou Harris, now Mrs. Melvin Jenkins, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, stood just in front of Miss June Wren who was the speaker of the morning. We gathered that the subject of Miss Wren's address was to be "Higher Education in the State of Mississippi."

When we could tear ourselves away we went into Lea Center to look at the register. It seemed as if the ten years had not elapsed for there was Eleanor Anthony's name first, as it had always been on class rolls and chapel lists. Eleanor, I learned, was buyer for Miller and Rhodes of Richmond.

The next name written in beautiful, flowing letters was that of Jessie Hurst, Efficiency Expert with the Zaner Bloser Handwriting Company, and beneath here was that of Miriam Russell. No one had to tell me what Miriam was doing for I had just read her best-seller. "The Zero Hour."

After we had signed our own names and had been warmly greeted by Mary Herring. President of the Greensboro Chapter of the Altumae Association, we went into the senior parlor where we were met by a familiar sight. Eleanor Hearon between telling how much she really did enjoy her work of assistant to the postmaster at Waxhaw was sympathizing with Eva in her trials as Dorothy Dix's successor in "Advice to the Love Lorn." In the middle of the floor as usual were Harriette and Winnie. Harriette was demonstrating the latest swing in putting up hay, learned from her experiences as a farmerette on the banks of the Yaddin. Winnie, as usual, was ready to accept any reducing method. for her full-time job as taster in a candy factory was hardly conducive to the trim figure. Over in one corner members of the textbook, committee of the North Carolina. Teachers' Association—Mildred Tippett. Hester Tulburt, Lib Atkinson, and Eloise Hendrix—were baving a short meeting with "Miss Tubbetts" as chairman.

"Oh, girls, have you heard about Carolyn Melton?" Anne piped up from the sofa where she had been listening to Alice's excited accounts of her experiences in conducting the children's story hour over the radio. Anne had come down with her husband who preached the baccalaureate sermon.

It seems that Carolyn had just had a sketch accepted for the cover of next month's Vogue

"And speaking of artists." Huppic giggled even though she was an expert statistician, "I just had a letter from Margaret who is in New York with Ellin where they have formed the Ford and Ford Company. Margaret writes short stories, and Ellin illustrates them with Margaret as model."

"Well, why don't we call them up and talk to them" said the always impractical Fergie, whose horse "Pole" had just won in the Curles Neck Derby.

I put in the call to New York and presently I hard a familiar voice. "Number, please." As I live and breathe. Anne Ruth Farrar, head of New York telephone exchange! "Well, well, a small world," I said, as I greeted Margaret.

"We're going to form a G. C. Club up here," she told me. "Chappie is operating a book shop on 7th Avenue, and Lib Lawson is chief usher at the Schubert Theater and Viola Ward is modeling hats for rainy weather. And over in Philadelphia Ruby Trollinger is conducting a 100 voice chorus with Margarette and Hicky as soloists. Mary Lib Pugh came by the other day on her way back from France where she has been studying French."

I wanted to hear more but by this time the commencement exercises were ready to begin. We started out the door and bumped into about a dozen bags plastered with foreign labels and somewhere amongst them we heard Pooch, who we found after a little difficulty was ready to conduct a special teachers' tour to Europe. Imagine our surprise when we found that Martha Wade and Mary C. Hutchinson, teachers in the Greensboro School system: Kitty Rohrer. Elizabeth Davis, Anne Bennett, instructors in home economics, and Bea Stafford, math teacher a Summerfield, were to go along.

Griffin and Helen had to go on to shoot a few pictures, so I stood out on the rotunda for a while. Who should walk up but Miriam Vail, who I lost no time in finding out was teaching piano in Wake Forest. "Cleppie wanted to come up," she said. "but since commencement isn't on Thursday she had to attend to her job of homemaking."

"Who is that?" someone beside me asked as a professional looking person came up shaking hands and beaming profusely. There was Faw, attorney-at-law, trying to scare up a little prestige so that she could get one of the district judgeships.

She and I started over to Odell, and were nearly knocked over by a large apple truck. "Watch out," a familiar voice yelled and Myra and Edith hopped out of the truck. Myra had brought a supply of apples for old '38 from her orchard, and Edith had taken time out from her playground work to come along.

We all went inside just as greetings were being read by the President of the Alumnae Association. Beulah Bradley, who was also president of the Faculty Wives at Louisburg. We were of course, excited to hear telegrams from Cleo Fox, dietitian at the University of Wisconsin; Ruth Webb, tennis instructor at a camp near Atlanta; Ruth Smith, interior decorator of Boston; Mary Lib Cox, research expert in the University of Pennsylvania; Lib Brinkley, dramatics teacher at Brenau College; and Mary Ruth Yelton, model at Marshall Fields in Chicago.

I looked across the aisle where a woman was busily writing figures on her program. I peeped over her shoulder—Janie Wariner counting the years until her Golden anniversary!

But what was that the president was saying? The library had received an autographed copy of Katherine Bradley's scientific book. "The Why of Things!" A burst of applause went up. I looked and saw Dot Lane and Mildred Faulkner, instructors at the Greensboro Art Center, and Margaret Wooten, who had come up from her Pitt County farm, wildly cheering old '38.

About that time Helen slipped in with a copy of her old paper "The Greensboro Record" and pointed to a full page picture of Estlet Hayes, who it seems was to marry a French cabinet member. I turned the page and there was Gertrude Taylor's champion basketball tearmbut something must be happening. All the type was running into big black letters and they were spelling "Greensboro College Celebrates Its Centennial." I kicked the paper off the bed, and turned over (or another wink of sleep before going out to conquer the teaching world

COLLEGE SONGS

Words by DR. J. R. MILLER. Professor of English

G. C., our Alma Mater.
Thy name we'll always sing.
We'll cherish thy traditions
And to thee our tributes bring
Our dear, our much beloved
G. C., our Alma Mater.
She'll stand thru years to be
The Green and White forever.
Our own dear G. C.

Words and music by MRS. A. K. MOORE, nee BLANCHE DAWSON, Class '09.

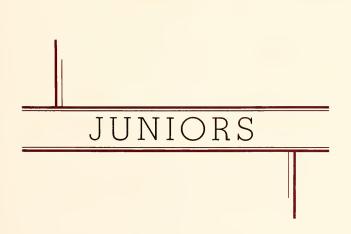

To our dear old Alma Mater we will sing a song of praise; All our hearts are filled with loyalty and love. For to her belong all praise and honor That our tongues can frame:
And for her we raise our hearts in praise above. Through the shade and through the sunshine She has stood, our college home.
And she stands for countless ages yet to be. Ah, our hearts beat high with pride and rapture For the home we love.
As we sing a song for dear old G. C.

CHORUS

Dear G. C., thy name is thrilling in the air: Dear G. C., my own dear college home so fair: Bright dreams of young life's golden spring Around thy walls forever cling.

OLD '38

You may not have the scholars who make all the A's. But you're A-1 with us. old '38. You may not have the athletes who shoot all the goals. But you're champs with us. old '38. We'll stand by you through thick and thin. You are the best that's ever been. And when we think of you in years to come You'll be always on the top, you're the cream of the crop. Our own dear class of '38!

Book Three FEATURES

THE FAMILIAR adage that "the first hundred years are the hardest" finds plenty of grounds for proof in the history of this college, for if any institution has been faced with difficulties, misfortunes, and just plain "bad breaks" Greensboro College has. From the very beginning to this one hundredth year the college has in the words of Dr. T. M. Jones "had to contend with that great difficulty, which has operated against the success of so many benevolent, noble, and grand enterprises—the want of funds."

Agents worked tirelessly and faithfully to secure enough money for the first building of 1846. Several years later when the number of students necessitated an addition to the structure the trustees were embarrassed because already a heavy debt was hanging over them. Resourcefulness, however, came to the rescue, and the trustees made the proposition that if the North Carolina conference would raise $20,000 and turn the sum over to Greensborough Female College, the college would educate free of charge the daughters of the ministers who at that time belonged to the conference.

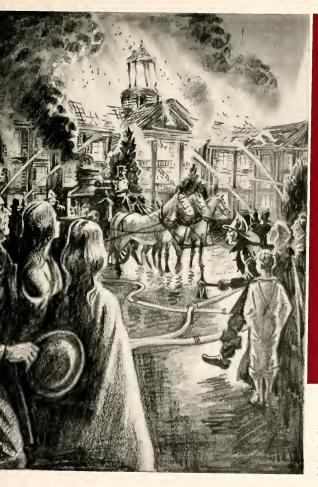

Matters continued rather smoothly then for a number of years until 1863 when another severe blow came. On Saturday night, the ninth of August, 1863, about twelve o'clock the cry of fire was heard. All efforts to arrest the flame proved ineffectual and before morning Greensborough Female College had gone up in flame and smoke.

No to be daunted, loyal friends began at once to rebuild the college. Dr. Jones, who was then president, set out to raise funds once more. By 1864 a quantity of lumber had been purchased, and it was the purpose to have "the building inclosed by the next year," but the change in condition of the country caused by the close of the war prevented the program of the work. What money there was had lost its value, and as a further catastrophe the Federal army confiscated the building materials.

Again came the drive for funds: at last on August 27, 1873, eleven years and seventeen days after the destruction of the old building the college reopened.

Financial difficulties continued, and in 1882 the college was purchased by a "syndicate of prominent laymen." The struggle for security steadily grew until in 1903 the college was on the verge of closing. The alumnae, led by Miss Nannie Lee Smith, unwilling to see their Alma Mater suffer, plunged into a strengous drive to save her. Mass meetings, newspaper stories, and days of exhausting work were finally rewarded with success, and the alumnae were able to purchase the college, which they succeeded in getting the North Carolina and Western North Carolina conferences to take over.

At last the way began to clear, but not for long. Once more a tumble came when on Wednesday, February 23, 1904, at two o'clock in the morning, fire again destroyed

AT two o'clock on the morning of February 23, 1904, college girls were roused from their warm beds by the cry of fire. Shivering in the cold winter night they watched the lapping flames quickly destroy the building. Neighbors came to the rescue offering their beds to the students, who it can be supposed did little sleeping that night.

the college. Before daylight plans had been made for rebuilding, and exactly three months and three days later through almost superhuman efforts the college opened. With no major mishaps Greensboro College has continued to operate since that time.

What misfortunes, if any, the next century will bring we do not know: but with the "first hundred years" behind her and the ever loyal support of her alumnae and friends she can do nothing but climb.

T IS TRUE that raiding a turnip patch or sliding down bannisters might be called activities in which the G. F. C. girls participated, but for approximately the first fifty years all organized outside activities were concentrated in the literary societies.

As early as 1846 the students had two literary societies, the Sisgourneyen and the Philocecheren, which in those early days substituted for a library, for each had a separate hall furnished with a reading room. About 1879 the Mary Lyon Literary Society sprang up with a purpose to furnish "an auxiliary for the cultivation of tastes and manners," and to afford "rare facilities for inspiring elocution, composition and conversation."

But the debates and the spoken essays of the programs began to prove inadequate. Students needed an opportunity for literary expression, so in 1884 the "Message," college magazine, made its appearance. The "Message" carried poems, essays, and stories by the literary minded young ladies, as well as news events of the college, editorials and even a gossip column.

A "Message" of 1887 discloses the exciting news that a Shakespeare Club was to be formed under the direction of the new "elocution" teacher who had studied with "Hudson, the great Shakespearean commentator." Evidently dramatics as a so-called extra-curricula activity began about this time. A story has been handed down that plays were seldom given in those days as acting was considered quite outside the pale of decency. "The Merchant of Venice" once presented, the story goes, created most unfavorable comment, though there could have been no objection to the girls' attire. From their waists up they were dressed as the characters they were portraying, but for the sake of decency, long skirts completed their outfits.

Athletics of the present day status found its beginning back in 1892 when a "Message" states. "Our calisthenics teacher is making an effort to procure necessary implements for out-door exercise. This feature of college life is beginning to take its proper stand. We realize more than ever the importance of recreation."

It was not long then until the woung ladies clad in their elahorate gym suits of long ruffled bloomers and skirts were exercising daily with Indian clubs and dumb-bells for the use of which they had paid the nominal sum of fifty cents.

The first annual "The Tattler" published in 1903 hore a picture of girls playing ping-pong. Also by that time basketball teams and a tennis club had come into existence, and a "May-pole" was mentioned as a part of the commencement program.

This first edition of the Greensboro College yearhook was a "scrapbook looking" book containing in addition to pictures a number of original short stories and sketches. The staff had assumed for the photographer a business-like look with pompadoured hair and long black skirts and middies, and had grouped themselves around a heavy old "library" table.

By that time the social life at Greensboro College had become highly organized, for pictured in the "Tattler" were the "Flinch Club" and the "Chaling Dish Club" whose officers were listed as "chief cook," "chief eater," "pot licker," etc. Dressed in flowing white costumes members of the dramatic club had draped themselves over a couch and with soulful expressions had posed for the photographer.

LAWN TENNIS proved popular with the G. F. C. girls. A "Message" of 1888 bears the spicy comment "Lawn Tennis is the latest 'racquet'!"

A 1908 "Echo" lists an "Old Maids' Club." an "Eat-All-You-Can Club." "The Down Homers." "The Diggers." and "The Kute Kids" whose motto was "Have as much fun as you can with as little work as possible."

Activities today occupy a large place in the life of a Greensboro College girl.

A burst of appreciative applause honored the members of the Student Council on March first as they rang down the curtain on a highly successful year, and handed over their costumes of office to their successors. With a "four star" rating, the 1937-38 Council officers gave their performance. Never missing a cue the well chosen cast remembered their lines accurately; and remembering the actors' motto, "the show must go on," they portayed their roles with deep understanding.

Heading the cast was Margaret Chapman, who in the role of "President." was ably supported by Patti Sue Hipps, as "Vice-President": Martha Way, as "Second Vice-President": Martha Way, as "Second Second Seco Gowan, Mary Lena Green. Offa Lou Harris, and Meriel Edwards, as "House Presidents": and a cooperative faculty and student body.

The Students' Association with its authority vested in the Council has had an interesting history dating from 1914, when students, feeling the need for student government "to effect sympathetic and loyal cooperation between the faculty and the students and to attain the highest ideals of college life and conduct," set down a constitution meeting this need. The opening year's work was a huge success, and each of the twenty-five consecutive performances since that time has been marked with improvements. The 1937-'38 cast added its part to the progress of the show by a redecorated council room, a number of additions to class privileges, wise judgment in important cases, better understanding through a joint retreat with the "Y", and furtherance of the Honor System.

COLLEGE COUNCIL

To establish a better relationship between students and faculty an organization known as the "College Council" was begun this year. This grew out of the old "Big Council" and is composed of the Executive Council of the Students' Association, the Advisory Board, presidents of the Athletic Association, the Y. W. C. A., and the societies, the fire chief, and representatives of the four classes. Before this board, petitions and suggestions of varying importance and subjects are presented, discussed, and reported upon. In this full centennial year the Council was not the active body it hopes to be with more time, experience, and understanding, but a start has been made and out of it doubtlessly will grow an effective organization.

Membership includes: Margaret Chapman, Patti Sue Hipps, Martha Way, Mary C. Hutchinson, Mary Ruth Bruton, Margaret Anderson, Estelle Hayes, Meriel Edwards, Mary Lena Green, Ellin Ford, Louise Robbins, Sara King, Virginia Patrick, Anne Jones, Margaret Faw, Mary Starr Martin, Evelyn Lyles, Anne Bennett, Elizabeth Fulp, Lucile Horne, Annette Bruton, Mary Susan Robertson, Dr. Luther I. Gobbel, Miss Anne Garrard, Miss Alanie M. Pegram, Miss Mary L. Ginn, Miss Elba Henninger, and Dr. J. Roddey Miller.

High scholastic averages have their merits, for with a ninety average added to character and general attitude Greensboro College juniors and seniors may receive invitations to become members of the Honor Society, highest scholastic organization of the campus. Begun in 1921 the society has continued to recognize and encourage scholarship. In the spring of 1937, however, the society underwent a complete reorganization and became instead of a list of names an active body.

This year Frances Griffin was elected president: Patti Sue Hipps. vice-president: and Margaret Ford, secretary: and a number of students passed the membership requirements.

The Honor Society is composed of Phi Beta Kappa faculty members as honorary members. Dr. Luther L. Gobel, Rev. W. M. Curtis, Dr. R. T. Dunstan. Miss Annie M. Pegram. and Dr. Madeline Stinson: faculty members who were alumnae of Greenshoro College and who were in the Honor Society. Misses Mary Brock. Blanche Burrus. A year's report of the Y. W. C. A is "chock" full of one activity right after the other, for the organization with its program of work led by the "Y" cabinet has leaders with energy, thoughtfulness, and resourcefulness. Organized on this campus in 1896 the Y. W. C. A. was designed to meet the religious needs of the student and has succeeded in meeting them while widening its activities to include social and educational contacts.

The valuable Wednesday and Sunday night vesper services have been a great contribution to campus life. From January 29 to February 2 the "Y" brought to the campus Dr G. Ray Jordan. pastor of the Centenary Methodist church in Winston-Salem. who conducted one of the most successful Religious Emphases weeks in several years. Other well-known speakers whose appearances here were sponsored by the organization were Kirby Page and Dr. Arthur Raper.

In accordance with custom the 'Y' welcomed new girls with a party, gave a Christmas party for 52 underprivileged children, held monthly birthday parties for students, and served punch or coffee on a number of other special occasions.

Three delegates attended the National Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. conference at Blue Ridge; five went to the National Methodist Students' conference at St. Louis, Missouri; and twenty-one attended the State Methodist Students' conference at Chapel Hill.

A joint retreat with the Student Council at Sunny Acres was an enjoyable and beneficial trip.

The efficient cabinet was composed of: Anne Jones, president; Ruth Webb, vice-president; Beulah Bradley, secretary: Carolyn Melton, treasurer; Virginia Patrick, manager of the "Y" store: Alice Scott, religious education chairman; Lou Millard, publicity chairman; Carey Atkins, world fellowship chairman; Margaret Rives, social chairman; June Wren, social service chairman; Margaret Williamson, music chairman; and Mary Lee Flowers, publication chairman;

The slightest sound of 'Old Emerson' brings scurrying from all directions always loyal Emersons eager to join in the cheers of love and praise for their society. In fact, so eager was one of the members last fall that she fell through a skylight in trying to reach her sister Emersons.

Though the smaller and younger of the two societies the Emersons make up with a spirit of sportsmanship and fair play that prevails in every one of their activities, and a staunch loyalty that is never lost even many years after the members leave G. C.

The year opened with countless circulars, letters, and the renowned "Emersonian" to new girls. Entertaining programs and orchestras made up their first formal meetings, and new girls and Emersons joined in an afternoon of fun at the Cone Lake. On February 18 the Emersons jointly with the Irvings gave a tremendously successful Intersociaty dance

Officers for the year were: Evelyn Lyles, president: Series Snipes, vice-president: Polly Brewster, recording secretary: Patti Sue Hipps, corresponding secretary: Nancy McGowan, treasurer: Mary Louise Thacker, critic; Mary Iranecs Moore, censor: Elizabeth Gabriel, chaplain: Elizabeth Mendenhall, planist: Henrietta Hines, Louise Hickey, Rena Davis, Winifred Bryan, Miriam Gibbs, Barbara Allen Moss, marshalls.

MARY STARR MARTIN President

As one of the important organizations on the campus, the Irving Literary Society is tops. She is the older of the two societies on the campus and is enthusiastic in trying to uphold a fine spirit of friendliness and in stressing the social life on the campus. This fall she capped the "Rush Week" activities with a garden party, and during the winter has joined with the Emersons in making the Intersociety dance a big success. It is with love and pride that the members look on her colors of purple and gold and turn towards a full and brilliant future for her.

Today the 1938 ECHO is yours. The worn old lay-out, familiar glossies and flar proofs have become such old friends, it is hard to realize that they are no longer necessary and that the book is actually in one piece.

For over a year now we have watched it grow worrying over every mistake, clucking over every satisfactory part. Great were our plans as we started out. The largest part of the work was to be completed in the summer but somehow vacation and annuals didn't prove congenial. and it was the latter part of September before we really began. Gray hairs sprang out as rain caused hair to droop, people forgot appointments, and proofs were lost, but everyone was at last pleased. Christmas Eve saw us at home feverishly marking pictures to catch a deadline. Upon our return to school old Morpheus caught us twice as in drawing up the lay-out we struggled over whether such-and-such club pictures should be size so-and-so, and tilted to what degree. Photographer and assistants shivered in the February winds taking group pictures. Merchants listened patiently while we explained how advertising in the ECHO would assure business recovery. Finally on the last two days we cut classes, missed meals, and scurried madly hither and yon trying to get everything together so that you could have your annuals today.

We have not tried to publish a history of the college, but only to set the people and activities of one year in a background of Greensboro College's past achievements.

Here it is, then—your 1938 annual. Probably you won't like it. We hope you will. But we have done our best, and have enjoyed doing it.

COLLEGIAN HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Greensboro, N. C., May 5, 1938—The Collegian, Greensboro College newspaper, is nearing completion of one of the most successful and progressive years since its beginning in 1926, according to reports of members of the student body. Under the able and dependable editorship of Margaret Ford, the newspaper has risen from a monthly publication to a bi-weekly. Students look forward to its prompt appearance every other Friday evening.

Trying to publish two issues a month on a limited budget is no easy matter, but Clara Meade Smith, as business manager, puts on her best business tactics and secures enough advertisements.

The regular news portion of the paper has been supplemented with lively write-ups, a "Campus Personality" column, and a number of pictures, a great many of which are candid shots made by the editor herself.

The literary page gives opportunity for recognition of creative writing especially that of new students.

A December Collegian came out with six pages containing the names and addresses of the entire student body and faculty, a feature that was extremely helpful in sending Christmas cards. In connection with the centennial drive, special "endowment," "library," and "gymnasium" issues came out in the spring.

MIRIAM RUSSELL

HELEN AVETT
Business Manager

Little did we dream back in August when the postman interrupted our comfortable vacation sleep of all the shoe leather, backaches, and tiresome hours that went into the little green Handbook he brought. True, it seemed a handy little article to keep in the table drawer and refer to in case of doubt or argument: further than that, however, we scarcely gave it thought. But much thought as well as praise is due, for two of the least lauded but hardest positions on the campus are those of editor and business manager of the Handbook.

Having been selected by the Student Council and approved by the student body Miriam and Helen set to work last Spring. Time after time Miriam reminded presidents to hand in material; time after time they forgot it. Helen kept the dust flying scurrying from one advertiser to another. Finally she secured more than enough to pay for the book—even if one shoe shop did insist upon the fee being "taken out in trade."

Summer came. With Helen in Cornelius, Miriam in Dunn, and the printer in Greensboro, matters proved to be a bit complicated, and the mail service in those points increased considerably. Pecking a typewriter became Miriam's full-time occupation as she copied page after page. Last minute calendars and orientation programs caused a good-sized headache or two.

But finally the eighteenth edition of the Students' Hundbook made its appearance: however. little thought we may give it, it has proved an indispensable guide.

CREATIVE WRITERS

Girls interested in creative writing submit samples of their work to the Creative Writers' Club, who according to a system of points drawn up in 1936 criticize and grade the work. With a score of twenty-five a student is elected to membership. Every year the club sponsors a contest for the best piece of creative writing, a prize being given by Mrs. W. C. Tucker of Greensboro.

During this year members concentrated their efforts for the most part in the writing of the centennial pageant presented during the commencement and centennial celebration.

Faculty advisers are Dr. J. Roddey Miller and Miss Mary L. Ginn. Membership includes: Helen Avett, Rubyleigh Davis. Margaret Ford, Frances Griffin, Lou Millard, Mary Frances Moore, Virginia Needham, and Elizabeth Rackley.

First rote: Avett, Davis, Ford, Griffin, Necond rote, Millard, Moore, Neediam, Rackley, Russell.

THE GLEE CLUB

SEPTEMBER—Mr. Vassar. fresh from a summer at Junuska. rolled up his sleeves and undertook the job of tuning up old members, recruiting new, and combining both into a club that would match the high calibre of last year's organization. The task was completed and more too, for when the Greensboro College Glee Club of 1937-38 made its first public appearance at the North Carolina conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, at Raleigh on November 18. listeners pronounced it the best yet.

More hours of practice, and the club again acquitted itself admirably, as, combined with the Meistersingers under the direction of Mr. Vassar it presented on December 12 the cantata "The Story of Christmas" by H. Alexander Matthews. Solo parts were taken by the Glee Club's own members. Virginia Smith, Martha Moores, and Margarette Godwin. The Greensboro Daily News said of the cantata. "The efforts of all were rewarded with a presentation of excelling beauty, invoking both reverence and colorfulness."

With the new plan for chapel programs it became possible for the student body to hear the club on Thursdays Founders Day and other important occasions claimed its services.

But then the work began—"Glee club every day till the trip," long distance telephone calls. letters, and conferences until at last on March 13 Mr. Vassar with Mrs. Vassar packed the excited children (bags, robes, peaches and all) into the bus with a streaming banner "Greensbord College Glee Club". 'Mid a rousing send off "Goss" let out the clutch and the first out-of-the-state trip since 1928 began. Off to Graham, Raleigh, Wilson, Bethel. Scotland Neck, Emporia, Va., Wakefield, Va., Richmond, Va., and finally to Washington, D. C.

The stories were many as the tired members rolled back to the college on March 20. They had had fun: they had sung well: and they had put Greensboro College on the map. What more could we ask?

Officers are. Ellen Singleton, accompanist and business manager: Mary Louise Thacker, assistant business manager. Martha Moores, secretary-treasurer; Mary Frances Moore, publicity manager; and Elizabeth Gabriel, librarian,

SEXTET

The "six little girls from school" have become quite famous in and about Greensboro as they have sung at practically every club in the vicinity at one time or another. With a repertoire of light music as well as that of the glee club the sextet is ready to please at all times and does please, for every day or two sees "Nellie," "Jinny," "Hen." "Maggie Bertha," "Nancy B.," "Martha" and "Ellen" dashing somewhere to fill an important place on a program. During this year the sextet has sung at the annual teachers banquet of the Thomasville Rotary club at Winston-Salem. the Wednesday Afternoon Music Club at Danville, Virginia, the Sheraton Hotel at High Point, the Merchants' Association banquet in Greensboro, over radio station WBIG, and on many other occasions.

Members are Nellie Alexander. Virginia Smith, first sopranos: Henrietta Hines, Margarette Godwin, second sopranos: Nancy Byrd Miles, Martha Moores, altos: and Ellen Singleton, accompanist.

Sunday afternoon. February 6, 1938, an appreciative audience was enthusiastic as teachers, students, and townspeople tuned up their strings, puffed out their cheeks, thumped on their drums, and, under the able baton of Mark Hoffman, combined to present doubtlessly the best concert ever given by the Greensboro College Orchestra since its organization in 1932.

Personnel of the orchestra is: Mark Altvater, oboe: Harry Shipman, Joe Leake, Alfred Penny-kamp, clarinets: Howard Moffett, bassoon: Hal Hutcheson, Ralph Todd, Oma Kent, trumpets: Cbarles Walters, Robert Simmons, trombones: Clyde Mitchell, French horn: Bruce Young, tympani: Elizabeth Mendenhall, piano: Dorothy Livengood, Joseph Allred, A. MARSHALS

Plays, recitals, and other important gatherings in Odell auditorium see the thirteen marshals in colorful evening dresses and white and green regalia busily getting the audience seated properly, handing out programs and keeping doors closed. Academic processions see the marshals lining up the participants and leading the way into the auditorium and to the stage. Marshals are just as busy at May Day. Class Day and other out-of-door programs supplying the spectators with programs and arranging for seats. Whatever is the task the marshal does her duty making the organization an indispensable body on the campus.

Marshals are Elizabeth Lawson, chief, and the following: Hester Tulburt, Mayo Jones, Miriam Russell, Myra Simpson, Harriette Weatherly, Eva Allen Mann, Eleanor Hearon, Martha Wade, Helen Avett, Mildred Tippett, Elizabeth Brinkley, and Catherine Hupman.

"Ding-dong, clang, bang"—at two o'clock in the morning we are startled out of a perfectly peaceful slumber. Another clanging of the bell, and we wake up enough to hear the roommats ay "Fire Drill!" We hop out of bed, and if our presence of mind is strong enough we pull down the windows, open the door, and grabbing a wet towel dash out of the building. But windows or no windows, wet towels or no wet towels, we scurry from the dormitories through specified doors, for absence from a fire drill points to "restriction."

Since fires have been closely connected with Greensboro College during her history, the fire department is taking no chances on another blaze.

Fire Chief is Ellin Ford who is assisted by her lieutenants: Mayo Jones, Mary Virginia Arnold, Beryl Graham, Annie Laurie Howell, Cleo Fox, Sallie Huddleston, Anne Slaughter, Ellen Cooper Axley, Helen Brown Jefferson, Catharine Dozier, Jean Bowers, Hilda Douglas, Ann Ashby.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

In direct connection with the history department is the International Relations Club which is affiliated with the Carnegie Foundation. Established at Greensboro College some twenty years ago the club bases its membership on interest and scholastic average in history and current problems. Only a limited number of juniors and seniors are eligible. Always a significant instrument in bringing before the student body problems and events of worldwide interest, the club has found plenty of material in the disturbed world conditions today. This year it sponsored Miss Jeannette Rankin, first woman member of Congress, who spoke on peace: and a sound moving picture showing war conditions in Spain and China.

Officers are June Parker Wren. president: Harriette Weatherly, vice-president; and Edith Long, secretary-treasurer. Membership includes Catherine Hupman, Patti Sue Hipps, Offa Lou Harris, Frances Griffin. Margaret Chapman, Eva Allen Mann. Eleanor Anthony, Eleanor Hearon, Anne Davis Jones, Mary C. TOWN GIRLS' CLUB

The Town Girls' Room in Main Building is always a bustle of activity. This year a bright new coat of paint, new furniture, lamps, and pictures, and fresh flowers make the room an attractive place for "between classes" of students who do not live in the dormitories.

The Town Girls' organization, although it is within the Students' Association with its own representative on the Student Council, is a unit within itself with its own officers. Through its efforts a great deal has been accomplished toward interesting town students in college activities and acquainting the Greensboro girls with one another.

The club's membership includes: Rachel Archer, Corrine Bennett, Helen Craven, Lois Cobb, Helen Donovant, Sarah Fleet, Gwen Holler, Sarah Johnson, Eleanora Kampschmidt, Margaret Wrenn Koontz, Margaret Middleton, Elizabeth Mitchell, Hazel Neal. Anna Leo Nelson, Mary Reece, Sue Reynolds, Vincent Schenck, Mary Katharine Snyder, Muriel Walker, Mary Lou Wimbish, Jean Stamper, Anne Bennett, Elizabeth Brinkley, Mary Elizabeth Cox. HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Margaret D. Stuart Home Economics Club is an enthusiastic organization of students interested in that field. This year the members made and filled stockings for the "Y" Christmas party for children, presented a fashion review of garments made by members, and made particular study of basket-weaving, knitting, crocheting, mask-making and needle-point.

Its members are Misses Bernice White and Margaret Stuart, faculty advisers: Anne Bennett, president: Kitty Rohrer, vice-president: Elizabeth Fulp, secretary: Dorothy Rhinehardt, treasurer; and Rachael Archer, Meriel Edwards, Cleo Fox, Beryl Graham, Sallie Huddleston, Carroll Jones, Sue Lee, Helen McDaniel, Virginia Patrick, Helen Robbins, Hazel Snipes, Vashti Starnes, Lulu Wariner, Frances Weston, Mary Frank Wilkerson, Annette Woodhouse, Anne Worth, Ruth Bunts, Ruth Arden Durham, Margaret Long, Mayo Jones, and Muriel Ketchum.

RAPHAEL ART CLUB

Artistic-minded students are eager to belong to the Raphael Art Club, membership in which is determined on the basis of ability. Every month each member submits to the club an original work to be criticized in the meetings. This year the club had as special speaker for one of the meetings Mr. Frederick Whiteman of the Greensboro Art Center, who gave a survey of art discussing particularly "Modern Art."

Carolyn Melton has served as president: Bennett as secretary and treasurer: Ellen Cooper Axley as publicity director with Ellin Ford as assistant. Miss Marian Landrum is faculty adviser. Other members are Blanche Dinsmore. Edna Kivett. Mildred Faulkner. Dorothy Lanc. Frances Dailey, Ruth Hayes, Elizabeth Lawson. Ruth Arden Durham, and Edric Martin.

G. C. DAUGHTERS

"When Mother was here," though not officially, is rightfully the chief motto of the organization of twenty-eight students whose mothers or grandmothers attended Greensboro College. Organized last fall the club has had a successful first year under the leadership of Mary Susan Robertson as president, Grace Clare Tayfor as vice-president, Madge Burkhead, as secretary, and Jeanette Hackney, as treasurer. Other members are: Eleanor Brock, Emma Muse Burns, Annette Bruton, Evelyn Chandler, Margaret Chapman, Doris Coltrane, Ruth Davidson, Marguerite Etta Evans, Dorothy Ferguson. Eleanor Fitzgerald. Sarah Fore, Julia Harriett. Muriel Ketchum, Margaret Long, Mary Frances Moore, Jamie Merritt, Margaret Palmer, Florence Partridge, Virginia Rogers, Miriam Russell. Ellen Singleton. Ruth Slocumb. "All right, now, let's see what we can get out of these parts," said Miss Henninger as with a chair and a table and a cast in the Emerson hall she began molding "Berkeley Square" into a brilliant first production of the year. Finally on November 9 the rough spots had been carefully ironed out, the play was ready for production. At its conclusion an unusually large and appreciative audience agreed with the Greensboro Daily News in saying. "To the observer who searched for a superlative in the presentation of John L. Balderston's "Berkeley Square" there was the choice, or combination of choices, from a cyclorama of effective sound device, adequate technical support, beautiful scenery, elevant costumes, and commendable acting."

Hardly had the applianse died down when Miss Willard began rehearsals on the gay modern comedy 'Fly Away Home' given December 10. The experiences of the father who returned home after twelve years to get acquainted with his 'modern' children afforded much amusement, and the play was a thoroughly snjovable production.

The Players were not idle long, for soon in conjunction with the Greensboro chapter of the alumnae association they began dusting off scenery and costumes for a revival of "Unde Remus" Crecturs" as a benefit performance. The delightful dramatization by Dr. J. Roddey Miller of the beloved Uncle Remus stories had first been presented in 1932. Because Odell was overflowing with excited children on February 26 and because scores were turned away, the performance was repeated February 28.

As a final presentation the Players gave an amusing comedy "The Dover Road" on March 25. Ridiculous situations rose from the eccentric Mr. Latimer's hobby of intercepting eloping couples and keeping them for a week or two in order that they might become "better acquainted." The production was a fitting close for a brilliant season of the Players, whose membership is based on dramatic ability as well as a certain number of hours spent in work on productions. Present members are Elizabeth Brinkley, Mary Ruth Bruton, Kitty Cline, Margaret Faw. Elizabeth Gabriel, Winifred Gray, Offa Lou Harris, Jacquelyn Hauser, Evelyn Lyles, Mary Starr Martin, Leone Martin, and Mary Frances Moore.

'6:30' — 'Faw'' and ''Jeter' and all the athletics board meet in the old recreation room, the gym, or 'most any old place just so long as they won't be bothered. Matters from the selection of ''Muss G. C.'' to the care of ping-pong balls are discussed in these informal meetings.

For several years now the Athletics Association has been climbing, rung by rung, but this year, we feel, the organization has made a three rung step, for a great deal has been accomplished toward furthering interest in athletics on the campus. Feathers in the cap of the board, if we may change the figure (athletics is good for such) are the addition of recreational games—badminton, shuffleboard, darts, horseshoes, two ping-pong tables; the purchase of bicycles which have proved a great source of fun and exercise: the celebration of a successful Student-Athletic picnic: the revision of the athletics section in the Handbook; the use of the Nickelodian during mid-term examination week: and before the soccer tournament the pep rally in which class spirit ran high, originality came forth, and a good spirit of fun and sportsmanship prevailed.

During the year several members of the association have along with representatives from other schools been guests of the athletics department at Woman's Collège at a "Splash Party" and a basketball party.

RUTH WEBB Singles Champion

TENNIS

Sometime in the early fall. Lou. Goode. Jac. and Jeter put their heads together and mapped out a tournament for the racquet-swinging young ladies. (Lou. Goode and Jac being the class in coaching). The tournament seems to be rather a subject to be avoided in the company of these three. for it was late (very late) in the season before the champion was finally ascertained. However, first and second round matches within the four classes did progress with some rapidity, and Ruth Webb. last year's champion. came out victorious as the senior class champion. Lucile Horne as the junior class champion. Grace Clare Taylor as the sophomore class's best. and Celeste Horne as winner in the freshman class.

Webb won over Taylor, and Lucile Horne succeeded in downing her sister. Final scores between Horne and Webb showed 3-6, 6-2. 8-6 sets with Webb on the winning end.

SOCCER TOURNAMENT

With the rousing send-off of the Pep Rally the 1937 soccer tournament got underway with plenty of class spirit and a great deal of rivalry. Following the custom set last year, the schedule included two games each afternoon, and at the conclusion of the tournament each team had met every other class team.

On the first day the powerful sophomore aggregation trounced the freshmen with a 4-2 score. The deadliest rivals for three years, the juniors and seniors fought to a 2-2 tie.

Continuing a winning streak the sophs managed a 1-0 victory over the seniors, and the juniors won over their little sisters, the freshmen.

On the concluding day the seniors made a comeback with their triumph over the freshmen, and the sophomores chalked up another mark and accordingly the championship with their 2-0 score over the juniors.

THE HIKERS

One Saturday afternoon a passerby saw all colors of a patchwork quilt gathered outside Main building. Inside the colors were members of the hiking club whose calots, sweaters, and kerchiefs were of the brightest hues. And that girl in the red over there was Miss Garrard.

With spirits high and energy overflowing they started out. The autumn weather was "just right" for a hike. By and by as the spirits and energy lagged they came to the "Boar and Castle." Winnie was along so they all flopped down at a table and ordered 'food." With the Duke-Georgia Tech game blaring from a radio, Miss Garrard supported the Alma Mater between bites of a steak sandwich. Rather complicated situations arose when the waiter mistook our dean for one of the college girls: but he was soon set a-right and the hikers set out for the home grounds.

Dissertation On Educational System of Present Day Colleges

By Mary Frances Moore

The main trouble with the educational system in the colleges of today is the college faculty's attitude toward students. They don't seem to realize that students only come to college in order to secure an education. The students aren't interested in the assignments, tests, and all that rot that teachers hand out and really seem to expect students to get. The actual lay-out is this: Students parents are paying out perfectly good money—some of them even sacrificing in order that the youth of today may secure learning to further the causes of democracy, peace, and the W.P.A. of to-morrow. The students enroll in college: sacrifice beauty sleep to make eight o'clock classes; sacrifice their freedom to get in at 10:20 P.M.—in fact sacrifice their all—and what do they get?
